Camden Ouachita Coty Arks. June 6th 1849

Dear Lorden

A few evenings ago I had the exquisite pleasure of beholding for the first time in a long while W. L. Breadwell (the name of) a name that in some future day will be talked of in the halls of Legislation & the bare mention of which will call forth and arouse all the energies of our People to still higher displays of glorious effort. What is a name with our the glory connected with it, would survive a hundred generations, not tarnish nor fade but collect splendor from the lapse of time, and deck with Radiancy the historic page, I had but stop for fear you might deem me enthusiastic,

As for myself I am as yet on the stage of action, my health is very good my weight is one hundred & fifty seven pounds. I am remarked that after you finished your preparation off for Arks or some where else, I should be very much pleased for you to come on we have about fifteen Lawyers in town some of which are quite talented young men. It is uncertain where I shall settle. Our City is improving it contains a population of about fifteen hundred souls.

Old Bill is still alive (strange to tell) still crooked eyes, ugly as Cerebus but not quite as black, he now occasionally as it is said appeals to the sympathies of the fair daughters of eve, If there is any papably chance for one to drop up, he is there. I am confident that his penis has not been in a perpendicular attitude in a year, but it is said that when it does stand, that there is such a rush up blood to it, owing to its tremendous size, that he turns pale and frequently faints. I understand that Sam's Wife means a bustle before, but Bill drops in warm weather about the line of September next)
